The resolution called for support of the teachers' request for a $200 raise from county sources.

VIRGINIA PROGRAM OF TREE PLANTING

Fredericksburg.- Pulp and paper companies continue to lead the way in the Plant More Trees program in Virginia.

Eight participating companies have placed orders for 15,834,000 seedlings — more than 37 per cent of the 42 million expected to be produced in Virginia nurseries—for their own lands and in various free matching programs sponsored by the industry.

Of the seedlings ordered by the industries this season, 5,133,000 have been allocated under their free matching programs and under planting plans set up for private landowners by foresters representing the companies.

An increase of nearly 100 per cent in company orders over last year is indicative of industry's great interest and continuing efforts in the field that all possible woodland areas are growing trees to the full capacity of the land.

Busy Week In Legislature

Richmond, Va., Feb. 17.- Additional funds for education topped changes in the state budget recommended to the House of Delegates this week by its Appropriations Committee.

The Committee added about seven and one-half million dollars to bring proposed general fund allocations for the next two years to $408,783,000, with $933,000 left unearmarked to take care of special bills and likely Senate changes. The budget bill will be taken up as a special order of business in the House about midweek and in all probability the Senate Finance Committee will begin its work on the House-passed version before the end of the week.

Important changes by the House Committee added:

$5,275,000 for public school teacher salaries, boosting their increase in minimum scale by $150 the first year and $100 the second year of the binennium, in addition to "normal" increments of $150 each year.

Approximately $1,000,000 additional for the Department of Education for vocational education, research planning and testing, special education, and sick leave for teachers;

$50,000 for state scholarships for deserving students graduating from high school, in line with Governor Almond's request for greater impetus to a strengthened program in science and mathematics; the funds to be administered by the State Council of Higher Education;

$50,000 for plans for a Northern Branch of the University of Virginia;

$1,883,000 more for operational expenses of state supported colleges;

$2,867,000 more for capital outlays at state colleges, including $350,000 for an auditorium - gymnasium at the Clinch Valley branch of the University of Virginia;

$298,000 more for Conservation and Development, including $550,000 for publicity and advertising in line with Governor Almond's request;

$200,000 for drought relief, a new item in the state budget.

The Assembly completed action last week on several major items. These included legislation:

Substituting an economist for the distributor member of the State Milk Commission;

Automatically closing any public school patrolled by uninvited federal troops or federal law enforcement officers. (This "Little Rock" bill was recommended by Governor Almond.)

A supplementary bill introduced last week would authorize the Governor to close any other school in a district where the "Little Rock" bill was invoked.)

Providing for a Virginia Advisory Legislative Council study of parimutuel betting on horse racing and other law enforcement problems., if such legislation were enacted; the Council report to be made to the session of 1960.

Major issues awaiting further action are changes recommended by Governor Almond to strengthen the the Pupil Placement Act, introduced last week; bills to provide protection against the uninsured motorist; the Senate passed bill imposing a mandatory jail sentence for drunken driving; the administration backed bill to enforce the constitutional provision against aid or assistance in voter registration; a bill re-establishing the "Fair Trade Act," already passed by the House; a bill making life term prisoners eligible for parole consideration after 12 years, which has been approved by the Senate.

Growers Vote For Quotas

Weather and road conditions kept down the number of fire-cured tobacco growers able to come to the polling places Tuesday to vote in an ASC referendum on marketing quotas for the next three years.

Only 79 ballots were cast, out of nearly 900 eligible. Of the 79, all but one voted for the quotas.

1.39 Average Allotment

The 1958 fire-cured allotment for Appomattox County stands at 1040.-76 acres, following the recent cut of ten per cent. The 1957 allotment was 1156.90 acres.

This means a loss of 116.14 acres in the county allotment.

In the individual farm allotments for 1958, it now works out that the average fire-cured grower in Appomattox County has an allotment of 1.39 acres. Individual allotments, of course, vary above and below this figure.

Traditionally one of the very best fire-cured tobacco counties in the belt, Appomattox growers have in recent years greatly increased yield and income per acre, in an effort to offset repeated acreage reductions.

Girl Scouts Sell Cookies

Girl Scouts will begin selling cookies Friday, Feb. 21. They will have two kinds to sell: chocolate mint and cream sandwich cookies. Both kinds are attractively packaged and sell for 25c a box. Each girl's goal is 18 or more boxes. The sale ends Saturday, March 8. Please support your local Girl Scouts and Brownie Troops by buying Girl Scout Cookies. Mrs. John S. Grinels is Neighborhood Cookie Chairman.

WEEKLY NEWS REPORT FROM TOWN MAYOR

The Town of Appomattox:

I want to again thank all of you good people for the very careful and courteous manner in which you have operated your vehicles during the inclement weather.

During this cold spell, I urge everyone to be most careful with their furnaces and stoves. It is very easy for stove pipes to get too hot and cause a fire, so I plead with you to be most careful.

Friday, Feb. 21 is "The World Day of Prayer." I urge all merchants to cooperate and close for an hour from 10:30 - 11:30 A. M. and give all of their employees a chance to attend the service. We all have a lot to be thankful for and I feel that we all should take a few moments to worship the Lord.

Your advice and counsel on public matters is invited at all times. Remember please, drive safely.

Sincerely,
C. T. Moses, Jr.

NEW BOOK IN THE COUNTY LIBRARY

Peace River Country
By Ralph Allen.

As the day coach joggled westward on its tracks, Harold Sondern knew they had to leave Dobie, just as they had left other towns. His mother did not need to explain; even his little sister Kally understood about how their father drank too much and would never find them once they reached the Peace River Country, where Canada's plains meet the mountains. Peace River Country was not intended as a novel with a message or with allegories. It is a simple story of some of the things that troubled or heartened the people on the train as it moved westward.

EXPLOSIVE MEETING

Dover, Ohio.- When the City Council president, Earl E. Matthias, cast his first deciding vote in about five years recently, he did it with a bang.

Someone had fastened some caps to his gavel.

Milk Producers Hard Hit

For the first time in five years Appomattox grade A milk truck to Newport News failed to make its trip Monday. The truck was ready to roll, but producers were snowed in on rural routes and could not get the milk to Appomattox. The truck serves some 28 producers in the county, and normally hauls over 2,000 gallons daily. Monday night the truck made its trip, with about half a load. Main routes were open but the farm-to-market roads were blocked by drifts.

Patrons Cooperated

One mail carrier told of a rural patron who walked three miles in the snow to meet the carrier at a point that could be reached, getting his own mail and also that of his neighbors. And another carrier remarked: "We may wear out some of the mail carrying it around before we can deliver it."

Buldozers Kept Busy

Farmers who had bulldozers were kept busy trying to push back the snow drifts to keep their entrances open, and to take care of their livestock.

Fire Near Spout Spring

The Appomattox County Fire truck was thwarted from answering an alarm Monday due to snow drift blockage of rural roads. An alarm came in from a chimney fire at a residence, that of Virginia Williams, near Spout Spring. The county fire truck and volunteer firemen responded but ran into a thirty-inch snow drift after leaving the main highway. The firemen sent for a wrecker but managed to dig out before it arrived. They returned to town.

We are informed that the Williams residence burned.

Banquet Postponed

One of the casualties of the snow storm was the annual Father - Son Banquet of the A. H. S. chapter of Future Farmers of America. The banquet was scheduled for last night at 7 o'clock. It was postponed and is tentatively re-scheduled for next Tuesday night.

Keeping Warm

A fire was kept going all night Tuesday in the local fire engine house, and town employees and volunteer firemen were taking no chances of the fire trucks not being "ready to go" in event of alarm.

Hay Lost by Fire

Fire destroyed a barn on Route Two last Friday, containing a considerable quantity of hay belonging to H. C. Pulliam.

"The Human Factor"

The "human factor" began to assume top importance by mid week, as workmen were becoming exhausted from loss of rest and sleep in the prolonged battle with weather conditions. Those operating wreckers, road equipment, etc., were just about given out from overtime efforts to serve the public.

"Hauling Them Out"

Mayor C. T. Moses Jr. was in the thick of the weather battle. He reported tractor-trailer trucks bogged down all along Route 15, and that bitter cold got the best of many drivers. He reported a jam of stalled trucks, buses and cars, just east of Appomattox late Saturday, and several dozen having to be pulled out of ditches and from over embankments. Several were still stranded Sunday morning, and the story was repeated over and over all the first half of the week.

Needed Every One!

Highway forces called into service any and every owner of a bulldozer, but many of them broke down combatting drifts of snow.

But He Made It!

Joe Ferrell, Route 4, managed to get out to town Tuesday, but snow drifts piled up and he could not get back that night with help for his poultry business. Fuel was running low, feed was running low, and the water was frozen.

Division School Superintendent J. A. Burke announced yesterday afternoon that Appomattox County public schools would be closed until Monday, due to weather conditions.

This will mark the first time in quite some years that the schools were closed for an entire week due to weather. The heavy snow over the week-end made it necessary to close schools Monday, and then as road conditions failed to improve, daily announcements were made for Tuesday and Wednesday. Then the decision yesterday was to reopen on Monday.

This was in line with nearly all counties. Roanoke City schools reopened today, as did those of Highland County. Most most of the rest were closed until Monday.

Another snowfall could easily be the cause of an extended closing of schools into next week.

"The Mail Must Go"

The tradition that "the mail must go through" was the motto of local rural mail carriers during the snow coverage. They served a large number of patrons Monday, and Tuesday run into drifts all day. Some places they were able to reach on Monday could not be reached Tuesday, due to drifts Another problem was on many roads they managed to cover on the out-going trip, had been blocked by drifts on the return trip. Patrons should thank the carriers for the tremendous effort they made to serve as many as possible.

Stranded on Shoulders

The major traffic hazard in driving Saturday night was in running off the hard surface. This reporter counted dozens of cars stranded on highway shoulders.

Attendance Picked Up

Local factories tried to operate with small work forces. Appomattox Garment Company had over 80 workers to report Monday, and more on Tuesday. But so many rural residents were blocked by drifts that it was likely the week would pass before full attendance could be expected.

Transco Kept Going

Main difficulty at Transco's big Compressor Plant here was that of fighting snow drifts in and about the plant.

Oil For Heating

Fuel oil deliveries were given the top priority by local distributors. Even then, the snow storms caught many homes short on fuel. (The Times-Virginian ran out of fuel oil Sunday at noon, but got quick emergency service to keep the presses, etc. warm.)

"Anybody Seen a Plumber?"

Anybody seen a plumber? was the cry most of the week, as frozen water pipes presented emergencies by many households. One plumber had a backlog of 25 calls.

No Church Services

Very few churches attempted to have services Sunday. Those who did, had very few in the congregation.

Not Much Shopping

Business was at a near standstill most of the week. A few business places were closed part of the week due to either water, fuel or other trouble associated with the cold wave. Retail stores that were open, found time hanging heavy on the hands of clerks.

Welcome That Sun!

By 11:00 A. M. Wednesday, the picture took a turn for the better. The winds declined and the sun got a bit of a thaw going. Everyone felt that "We are over the hump!"
